

Glen Morgan reported via the portal Sun, 23 June 2019 @ 6:58PM
To whom it may concern,

This probably should be considered an update to PDC Complaint #52387, although it provides expanding evidence supporting a wider pattern of a failure to comply with Washington State's campaign finance laws (RCW 42.17A).

It has come to my attention that in responding to PDC Complaint #52387 Kate Kruller appears to have mislead the PDC and the public regarding her campaign finances. In her response dated Wed, 19 Jun 2019 (see attached) she claimed "There is, to date, an F1, a C1 and a C4 properly and timely filed." Not only is that statement not accurate, but in her responses she reacts with defiant excuses rather than take corrective measures to simply fix her violations. Based on her recalcitrance and the items I detailed below I ask the PDC to look a little closer at Kruller's case when evaluating her violations and establishing appropriate penalties.

1) As of today, the PDC web site still does not reflect that Kate Kruller has ever corrected her C1 filing from a "committee" to a "candidate." Please see attached screen capture of PDC web site (PDC_Screen_Capture_2019-06-22-b.JPG), which shows she filed her C1 as a single-year committee, not as a candidate. It was submitted to the PDC on June 10, 2019, which was at least 10 days late, if counting from May 15th, when she filed with King County Elections. It should also be noted, for the record, that this filing was only done in response to my original complaint. Contrary to Kruller's claim otherwise, this was neither properly filed, nor timely. Yet, in her response she is essentially blaming the PDC, based on their web site revisions, or the complexity of such things as changing her own password, as reasons for her failure to file correctly. She claims this was an "unfamiliar path to the filing a C1..." but with the "help of PDC advisors" she was finally able to do it correctly. (Yet it is still not there today). At this time, it is still not corrected. Any citizen, voter, or media person who would want to look at the candidates running for the Tukwila City Council on the PDC website would not be able to find this campaign information, and in fact it would appear as though Kruller is not a candidate (see attached screenshot of PDC website – municipal elections 2019 – dated June 23,2019)

It should be noted that according to Ms. Kruller's 2019 F1 (see attached) she works at the City of Seattle as an IT Professional. Consequently, feigning ignorance of the correct process for something as common as changing passwords is simply not credible. As a professional she should have also verified that her corrections were updated herself, not placed that burden on the public to verify. Most citizens would still not be able to find her reports, because they do not appear anywhere as a candidate for Tukwila. If she simply checked the PDC web site she would see that nothing has changed. Again, this C1 filing not proper nor timely.

As a person acquainted with using the PDC web site myself, I find it striking that numerous other candidates--many of whom are first-time candidates--have successfully navigated the PDC site and filed their records correctly and on time. Yet, Kruller, an IT professional with prior experience as a three-time candidate, claims that she "struggled to file my C1 online" can't do it on time, and can only correct it with the help of PDC staff. Such excuses reveal an indifferent toward transparency, and is deeply concerning as it also implies an indifference towards following the law. If there was no intentional misdirection of the public initially, then making excuses and persisting with improper filing, is ever-growing evidence of intentional violations. Either way, she has prevented the public from having access to her records for over one year now--since as early as May 2018. (See item 5 below.)

2) Regarding her response to the discrepancy between her 2015 campaign closing balance and her 2019 opening balance she said, "I am delighted to learn that my bank account for this candidacy had a carry-over amount that matches the last 2015 C4 report, plus interest, because I have more funds to work with that I originally thought was possible to use!" How can nearly $700 suddenly appear in her bank account after the "missing funds" were discovered by someone willing to look? Where would that money have gone if I hadn't filed complaint 52387? At the least, it appears that I may have prevented an apparent personal misuse of campaign funds, but it should be noted that these "fixes" are all suddenly appearing due to the willingness of one citizen to look at the details – not out of a desire to be accurate or comply with the law the first time.

3) As mentioned above, Ms. Kruller claimed that one C4 was properly and timely filed. She submitted 100910042 on 06/10/2019, which was amended by 100910569 on 06/12/2019, which was amended by 100911686 on 06/19/2019, which was amended by 100911689 on 06/19/2019, which was amended yet again by 100911775 on 06/20/2019, which was finally amended by: 100911777 on 06/20/2019. At each step she was changing this C4 based on issues raised in various supplements to complaint 52387. So which version of this single C4 was properly filed and on which date over that 10-day period was it timely? Claiming this was "properly and timely filed" is just not factually true.

4) Ms. Kruller claims that she filed her C1 properly and timely and presents an email confirmation from the PDC dated May 28, 2019 as proof. However, that confirmation is for filing as a "committee" not a "candidate" so it was not proper according to Washington State's campaign finance laws. Since Kruller still hasn't filed a correct C1 as a candidate this can't be construed as timely either.

5) In responding to her failure to file her C1 within 2 weeks of when she reserved her domain name in 2018, Ms. Kruller is again attempting to obfuscate the truth. She claimed this is a "personal website" even though it was never used for anything but her campaigns. Please see attached C4 from her 2011 campaign (where that time she managed to register correctly as a candidate, not a committee). It shows she paid $119.40 to DREAMHOST.COM for her web hosting. Consequently, this has never been a personal site, but a campaign site all along. She can't have it both ways. Furthermore, going "dormant" between campaigns is a red-herring, she still needs to account for all expenses related to her campaign web site, including the domain name. Any person going to her "dormant" web site would not know the content there applied to a prior campaign. It is a disingenuous and convenient ploy to call this a "dormant" site and a first-amendment right of free speech when the public could reasonably misconstrue that she was running for office again. Again, there is nothing wrong with having phony campaign websites posted on the internet. This is fine, but the Washington State Campaign Finance laws require the expenses to maintain those websites be reported to the public. Transparency and accuracy is theoretically why we have campaign finance laws.

Ms. Kruller also tried to confuse the issue by referencing the date of Whois database update. As an IT professional she should know that the Whois database updates frequently--typically many times each day. I took the screen shot of the Whois report of her KATE4TUKWILA.COM domain name in October 2018, which is why it showed the database update in October. But that date is immaterial to the domain name renewal and expiration dates themselves. My attachment showed:

Updated Date: 2018-05-10T07:18:50Z

Creation Date: 2011-06-10T20:35:28Z

Registry Expiry Date: 2019-06-10T20:35:28Z

Similarly, the copy of the WhoIs report that Ms. Kruller attached in her response shows.

Updated Date: 2019-05-10T07:19:45Z

Creation Date: 2011-06-10T20:35:28Z

Registry Expiry Date: 2020-06-10T20:35:28Z

Meaning this domain name renews annually in May of each year. So she indeed paid for that domain name on May 10, 2018, as I submitted in my complaint. Hence, my complaint on this issue is still valid. As anyone who has had to reserve and manage domain names knows, these are often charged on an annual or every two year cycle, and money is spent to retain the domain name itself, as well as to host the website (as Kruller properly reported in 2011, but has chosen to hide from the public ever since). Essentially, there are two campaign costs which are not being reported - #1 – the cost of reserving the domain name. #2 – the cost of hosting the website.

Kate Kruller is an experienced three-time candidate, a self-described IT professional for the City of Seattle, and she's fully aware of these requirements, and she has the requisite skills to file reports accurately and on time. However, she is choosing to not do so, which is a little odd, and meanwhile blaming everyone else, which is probably more typical. Please consider these factors and the possibility that other information is being concealed. She knows better.

Please don't hesitate to contact me if you need any additional information.

Best Regards,

Glen Morgan
