Complaint DescriptionKess E Smith (Tue, 28 Jul 2020 at 7:06 AM)

Good morning,

I'm re-filling this with the requested info from the PDC. Original message below:

I just reviewed Sharlett Mena's C4. Sharlett is a candidate for the Legislature in the 29th District. It looks like there are a few small omissions from her report and I'm just asking that they are corrected.

Sharlett has reported on social media that she has ordered yard signs. There is also a photo of her and a volunteer on social media with a walking list. Both her website and mailer have several campaign photos. I don't see any expense listed for the yard signs, walking lists, or photos. I'm sure these were just honest omissions and should be an easy fix to get reported.

Lastly, just an fyi that I see a recent expense for printing. It is possible that that expense is for additional doorbelling materials in which case its' fine, but if it is for a mailer the cost for postage was omitted and would need to be corrected as well.

Again, small stuff and I'm not asking that there be any enforcement action, just want to make sure they get corrected.

Regards,

What impact does the alleged violation(s) have on the public?

As stated in the description below, this is small stuff and I'm not asking that there be any enforcement action, just want to make sure these expenses are reported as required.

Vote Sharlett Mena for State Representative

Building tomorrow's economy

We need to build an economy in Washington that works for everyone. Workers in our district must be prepared to take tomorrow's jobs in technology, aerospace, clean energy, health and human services and more. We must increase our investment in career and technical training opportunities and expand access. As our economy continues to evolve, we must also ensure our values remain intact. That means support for labor unions, fair wages and working conditions, and benefits that provide security for families. We must also work to ensure fair pay for all workers.

Time to act on climate

While politicians debate their positions on climate, we will be left with the aftermath of their inaction. Climate change is already hurting communities in our state. The salmon runs relied on by tribes and fisherman are diminishing at an alarming rate, and investments to save them will not be enough without climate action. Each year wildfires grow more intense, polluting the air we breathe and causing risk to our health. I will work to find relief for our communities and address climate change head on by reducing carbon pollution in our state.

Preparing the next generation

A good education is the cornerstone of a successful future. I will work to ensure access to quality early learning opportunities for every child and continue to invest in improvements for K-12. Washington's high school graduation still rates trail behind the national average. Black, Latino, Native American, special-education, and low-income students are even further behind. We need to adjust the system where it is falling short, until it serves all students.
