I understand you are inquiring as to the purpose of the PAC Recall the Establishment. Is this correct?

We are a group of activists engaged in many forms of activism. Education, socialization, motivation of the electorate, supporting candidates from time to time, and encouraging voters to sponsor initiatives, referendum, and recalls.

Because we are involved with activism, we do need money for voter outreach communication and to contribute to causes. This is why all of our contributions go to recall the establishment and not to anyone candidate or cause. Those causes are determined from time to time and will be reported by any party that it needs to report them.

We currently are encouraging several groups that are involved with recalls and several other groups that are involved with initiatives.

As you can tell I am not a professional campaign accountant. Perhaps you might be able to recommend a professional accountant we could hire in order to make campaign finance reported smoother?

I read the information you posted regarding Edward's complaint, and frankly most of it doesn't seem to make much sense to me.

Every cent we have received for our activism has been reported to the PDC, every cent we have spent has been reported as well. There is nothing missing, but I did notice that I reported the filing fee as $159 and it was actually only $156. The filing fee was reported as plain as day.

To be clear I am sponsoring an initiative. The Recall The Establishment group and email are helping but only along with the many other activism activities they work with. The group encourages people to get involved, run for office and engage in the political process. We speak up and encourage people to file recalls, initiatives, and referendums. We MAKE OUR VOICES HEARD!

The Recall The Establishment PAC has no connection whatsoever with the Inslee thing. We did take over the FaceBook group but there is no other connection.

I am the sole committee officer of the PAC, any other suggestion is both silly and offensive.
