Hi Tanya,

Thank you so much for bringing this to my attention. As a first-time candidate, I truly appreciate feedback that helps ensure we're doing everything correctly. It's very important to me that we are 100% compliant with all of the PDC's requirements and therefore have looked into this matter thoroughly.

According to PDC guidance, "paid for by" disclosures must use at least 10-point type or 10 percent of the largest type size used—whichever is greater. We want to assure you that a 41-point font was used for the "paid for by" disclosure (well above the 10-point type required). We measured the largest font size used (which was the "P" in Prem) and compared it to the "P" in the "paid for by" disclosure. We found that the disclosure font was just below the 10 percent requirement (i.e., the "paid for by" measures at .48" tall compared to the 4.9" letters that are the largest size on the sign). I have attached a diagram that describes the font sizes to email for reference.

To remedy this, we've ordered new signs with a larger "paid for by" disclosure and will ensure that any new signs that are put out moving forward are the updated signs. I hope that this addresses the issue and satisfies the PDC's requirements.

Thank you again for bringing this to our attention.

Best Regards,

Shilpa
